

Blasting not allowed under gravel permit

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington selectmen Monday night agreed to send a letter to the Shriners saying a gravel crushing operation on the site of the Aleppo Temple is beyond the scope of zoning regulations. The decision came in the wake of first hand testimony by several department heads that there "appears to be" more than just an earth removal operation in the property.

The Shriners were granted a permit in 1984 to begin an earth removal process to make room for a 1,066 car parking lot. This permit was renewed in 1985 by the board of selectmen.

Chairman Rocco DePasquale apologized to neighbors on behalf of his board, for allowing the crushing operation under the earth removal permit. He said the board has to assume the blame because it made "allowances" for the Shiner organization and was apathetic in properly policing the operation from the beginning.

The whole issue came to a head a few months ago when neighbors went to selectmen seeking relief from the excessive noise, dust, and damage to homes that they claim was being caused by the ongoing operation. As a result, selectmen issued a temporary permit good until December 22 and asked engineers to come back with another site plan, possibly for a two tier lot, to utilize space already cleared. This solution, they felt, would minimize blasting and prevent the operation from continuing for another four or five years.

Currently, there is a cease and desist order on the work on the site. This was issued by the Wilmington Conservation Commission because of violation of the Wetlands Protection Act. Until that order is lifted, said DePasquale, his board is "in limbo" and "cannot act on anything."

Conservation Commission Chairman Chester Bruce told selectmen he expects the engineer to appear before his board November 19 with a restoration order which could lead to lifting the order to cease operations.

Once that is done, said DePasquale, selectmen would then have a right to look at the matter in a "completely different light."

They would have to discuss terms and conditions under which they would allow the operation to continue and see that the crushing operation is removed from the premises, he added. Bruce told selectmen he thinks the Shriners are already planning to do that.

In discussion with the various department heads, selectmen learned there were some safety hazards on site as well as a zoning violation. Planning board chairman Carole Hamilton pointed out that if the Shriners aren't allowed to build an additional parking lot, they might again be in violation and might have to request a variance from the board of appeals.

Building Inspector Jim Russo predicted it wouldn't be difficult to reach a "mutual agreement" with the Shriners to resolve the whole matter and added that his department would "assist them as much as we could."

"They were caught in the middle," said Bruce of the Shiner's organization, "and everyone down the line paid for it."

Veterans remembered

Veterans' Day exercises were held on Wilmington Common on Tuesday, with American Legion Commander Ann MacInnis and Dave Peters, senior vice commander, placing a wreath at the base of the town flagpole.

Town joins drug alliance

Rocco V. DePasquale, chairman, Wilmington Board of Selectmen has announced that Wilmington has joined the Massachusetts Municipal Association in "Facing the Challenge" of drug and alcohol abuse.

"Governor Dukakis' Alliance Against Drugs and the national media has established an environment in which substance abuse can be recognized as a factor that is common to many communities. We must take this opportunity to support those local agencies and groups that have worked to arrest this problem and to offer our support for their continued and future success. Substance abuse is a threat to the health and welfare of our community that we can no longer ignore" states Chairman DePasquale.

The Governor's Alliance Against Drugs was established in December of 1984. It is a comprehensive program that includes cooperation among many segments of the community to address the problem of substance abuse. Members include schools, police departments, businesses, prevention centers and other related groups and agencies.

The Town of Wilmington has established an Alliance Against Drugs made up of representatives of the Board of Selectmen, Town Manager, School Committee, Superintendent of Schools, Shawsheen Technical High School representatives, SADD, Chemical People, Wilmington Family Counseling, Wilmington Regional Health Center, Board of Health, health director, police chief, juvenile officer, Wilmington Council of Churches, Mt. Auburn Hospital Prevention and Training Center.

Shamrock appeals

Shamrock Liquors has filed an appeal with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission questioning the decision of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen to suspend the store's license for 14 days.

Following a two day hearing on a violation, the board had ordered Shamrock's license suspended between December 1 and December 14.

According to Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, he expected Shamrock attorney Kevin Sullivan to file the appeal. Though he feels the commission can only find on a procedural issue, Stapczynski told selectmen Monday night he would check to see on what grounds the could overturn the board's decision.

Selectmen also learned that the appeal would automatically cause a delay in invoking the suspension. They questioned how long that delay would be.

Tax rates set

by Arlene Surprenant
Both the residential and commercial/industrial tax rates have increased for fiscal 1987, according to figures presented to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday night.

Selectmen approved a residential rate of $13.83 per thousand and a commercial/industrial rate of $22.30 per thousand. In FY 1986, the rates were $13.70 and $21.83, respectively. According to Principal Assessor Anthony Krzeminski, the 13 cents residential increase is higher than any in the last three years.

Krzeminski said he used a 25 percent shift to arrive at the figures. Had Wilmington gone with an across the board rate for all properties, he added, it would have come out to $17.84.

Total valuation of all property in 1987 came out to $965,978,582. This represents an overall increase of $31,585,647 over FY 1986.

In comparison with other towns, it was pointed out that Wilmington has the lowest residential rate of any neighboring community. Tewksbury, for instance, has a rate of $15.30 while Billerica has a $19.49 residential rate. Wilmington's commercial/industrial rate is "very stable," added Krzeminski, and also "right in line" with nearby towns.

During the discussion, it was brought out that this is the fourth year the town has classified property since Proposition 2 1/2. Property is either classified as residential, open space, commercial, industrial, or personal. Also, stated Krzeminski, there is between $46 and $48 million of tax exempt property in town.

According to the Principal Assessor, there is now a leveling off period where home values aren't "skyrocketing" as they were in the past. To comply with Mass. General Law, said Krzeminski, his office will start inspecting homes this year in preparation for a valuation update in 1989. And, he added, tax bills will be sent out by the first of December.

D.A. clarifies Open Meeting Law

by Arlene Surprenant
A complaint of an alleged Open Meeting Law violation led to a clarification regarding the release of minutes and tapes of town board meetings. The clarification came from the District Attorney's office.

According to the D.A.'s interpretation, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said, all minutes and tapes become public record as soon as a meeting is adjourned. Tapes and minutes must be made available, following a written request by a resident, within a "reasonable" length of time. Though the term reasonable is subject to interpretation, according to the D.A. it is approximately 10 days.

At present, Wilmington town boards release minutes only after they have been corrected and approved by board members at a later meeting. Stapczynski told selectmen Monday that he has informed all boards of the District Attorney's interpretation of the law.

The clarification followed on the heels of a complaint filed in April, 1986 by Gerry O'Reilly. The complaint concerned a meeting that O'Reilly claimed was "improperly convened" to discuss strategy on the location of the Fourth of July carnival.

Upon investigation, the D.A.'s office found the meeting to be "legitimately called." Stapczynski said he made meeting tapes and minutes available to O'Reilly, though he has yet to pick them up.

Sewage overflow not yet solved

The problem of a possible sewer system overflow in the Grasshopper Lane area, off Chandler Street, Tewksbury, has not been solved. Last week the board of health was brought up to date on the case by William McMeniman, public health officer, and it seemed that a solution could be found.

The David Chandler home, on Grasshopper Lane is the place where the problem seems to be centered, but such is not the case. That home, three years ago had a puddle in the front yard which David Chandler then dug up, but without finding a source of the water. The board of health found an odor of detergents, but the Chandler family did not have a washing machine.

This year the water smelled of sewage, and McMeniman, on June 30 ordered that the sewer system be repaired or replaced. The Chandler family installed a new septic tank and drywell, at a cost of nearly $2,000. The septic tank was found to be about ready to collapse, but the drywell was in good condition

No source was found for the sewage, draining into the yard.

The case is complicated, McMeniman told the Board of Health, in that there are underground pipes in the area, probably installed years ago by some builder who was trying to lower the water table.

McMeniman offered to run dye tests, from homes in the area, to test water flow. By using dye tests a lot of money can be saved, because a lot of expensive excavating can be averted. Dye tests for individual homes take about 10 days to complete. A colored dye is flushed down a toilet and the health department then watches for colored water to appear somewhere nearby.

But, when McMeniman attempted to start a dye test program the first two householders on whom he called refused to participate.

McMeniman told this paper that he will ask the Board of Health to call a general informational meeting of residents in the area, in an effort to attempt to solve the problem.

Pot-hole damages cars

Two Tewksbury drivers are nursing damages to their car, damages which occurred at the same pot hole, on Trull Road.

Virginia Williams of 1219 Andover Road damaged her Chevy Chevette, at about 9:18 p.m., when it was trapped by the pot hole.

A short time later Lisa Wojkiewicz of 4 Whited Avenue had a rim damaged, to her Subaru car, by the same pot hole.

Presumably the pot hole has been repaired.

Fowl play at Tewksbury Town Hall

by Bill Conlon

In case you might have noticed, a larger than usual flock of pigeons is now fluttering around Town Hall in Tewksbury.

The pigeons have been there all along, but no one saw them before now. The messy birds had been living in the Town Hall attic according to Warren Brothers, the town hall custodian.

Brothers said a local resident was waiting in line at the Andover Bank next door when she noticed about 20 pigeons entering the building through a broken window pane. She later mentioned the bird sighting to the Selectmen's office, which got the ball rolling.

The Department of Public Works, with the help of a ladder from the Fire Department, put screens across the Town Hall chimney, blocking the birds from getting into the building.

Warren Brothers, though, had to climb into the attic to replace the broken window pane, which he said had been broken since he started working at Town Hall, some seven years ago.

"They were all over the place," Brothers stated with a grimace. The custodian said he had to bang a few pots together to scare the birds out before he could get to work. The birds appeared out of every crack and crevice in the attic, he said.

That's when he noticed the pigeon nests all around the attic.

"I cleaned out all the pigeons and their families," Brothers said with a grin. "Moved 'em outta town."

He said the problem with pigeons at Town Hall has been going on for some time now. The birds were nesting in the bell tower of Town Hall at one time, he said, and one hopeful attempt he made to scare them off didn't work as well as planned.

"I went down to Lowell and bought a rubber snake a few years back," he said, "paid six bucks for it." The snake was put in the rafters of the tower, with the help of the Fire Department, and kept the

Pesky pigeons

A flock of pigeons, estimated at 100 birds, was recently evicted from the attic of Tewksbury's Town Hall. The birds are now loitering around the chimney at the rear of the building, show here. Warren Brothers, the Town Hall custodian, has had trouble with pigeons in the past, and is now looking for advice on how to keep the pesky birds away permanently.

pigeons away for a while. But not for long.

"Once they figured out what it was," he said with a straight face, "they abused it terribly."

The rubber snake was removed at arm's length and unceremoniously discarded. Screens were later put over the louvers in the belfry, which has kept the birds from nesting in that portion of the building.

Now they've been evicted from their attic too, and they don't seem happy about it. The birds are still loitering around Town Hall, apparently hoping to get back inside for the winter.

"Hey, give 'em a cozy place and a TV and they gonna sit," Brothers said. The custodian described how an exterminator has been feeding the pigeons a specially-treated grain, to make them sick.

"They won't go back to where they got sick," he stated hopefully.

The treated grain hasn't been working too well, so it looks like the pigeons will be loitering for a while longer.

Brothers asked that anyone having suggestions for evicting the pigeons permanently should write to him, in care of Town Hall.

In the meanwhile, however, Tewksbury Town Hall will continue to look like a scene from Alfred Hitchcock's movie "The Birds." Brothers said he would like to see the birds leave, but that he doesn't know where they'll end up.

"Maybe they'll go to the Wilmington Town Hall," said the custodian.

Wilmington tightens regs for Christmas tree sales

by Arlene Surprenant

Independent vendors wishing to sell Christmas trees in Wilmington, with the exception of non-profit organizations, must now pay a $50 fee and obtain a state Hawkers and Pedlars license. They must also file for a permit to sell trees by a September 15 deadline.

Selectmen set down these guidelines Monday night in answer to requests by local florists and nursery owners to tighten up the number of permits issued to independents. Businessmen claimed that because of overhead costs and low fees ($10 fee) charged to independent vendors, it was hard to remain competitive.

According to selectmen, any businessman in a general business zone can sell trees on his property without applying for a permit. If, however, he allows an outside vendor to use the property, that vendor must follow proper regulations.

Some discussion ensued on a deadline date. Nursery and florist owners requested a September 1 deadline because they said they order trees early and they would like to know what competition they would have.

"It's not the responsibility of the town to guarantee someone is going to have a closed market," said Bob Cain, who opted for a later deadline of October 1. Selectmen agreed on a September 15 compromise.

Selectmen then granted permits to two early applicants: Real Renault (to sell trees on Lowell Street) and Boy Scout Troop 56 (to sell trees in No. Wilmington). Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said out of the seven applicants contacted from last year, these were the only two who responded.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

As surprising as it may seem, the real loser in last Tuesday state election was the governor himself. Though reelected by a near historic margin for a third term, Dukakis lacked any real opposition, and was defeated on two ballot questions which he adamantly opposed; those being the repeal of the mandatory seat belt law, and the state revenue cap.

The governor would have been better served having had an opponent who was credible. How can the governor or the press applaud his victory when for all practical purposes he was not running against anyone? George Kariotis is a nice guy, but he had about as much name recognition as the members of the beautification committee, most of whom could have given Michael a better run for his money; and money is something he has a lot of. I mean can you really picture the Duke running to the telephone from his suite of rooms at the Park Plaza last Tuesday night to tell Mario Cuomo and Fritz Mondale that he had beaten Kariotis to a pulp? The best thing the Republicans could have done in the last few months was withdraw from the gubernatorial race all together and endorse Dukakis. Think about that. Can you see the look on Michael and Evelyn's faces now?

The simple truth is that for all his intelligence and down to earth style, Kariotis wasn't about to get any votes outside of the devoutly anti-Dukakis people, of whom there are many. The only hope for a real intriguing political year would have been a King / Dukakis rematch, after which the Duke would have been calling Cuomo and Mondale for a job.

As for the issue of the ballot questions, the knock-out fight last Tuesday was won by two of the most competent people who live in this state--Jerry Williams and Barbara Anderson. Barbara did us all a great service again in what will now be not a temporary, but a permanent, cap on state taxes. This was a nice surprise for the Duke.

Then there is the Jerry Williams factor. Jerry often compared himself to David fighting Goliath, and accurately so. His campaign to repeal the mandatory seat belt law cost approximately $8,000 compared to at least $400,000 spent by the people who wanted to cost you a bit of your own freedom. David won out and you ended up with something that a lot of veterans out there fought for--the right to make free choices. In both cases the proof was there that Dukakis does not have the influence that he wish he had over the electorate in the Commonwealth. In fact, only one day before the election, at the governor's birthday party, he asked for a favorable vote on the seat belt law as his gift from the voters. We'll have to send him a Hallmark next year to make up for that.

Then there is the matter of our new lieutenant governor, Evelyn Murphy. What a relief it is to have that office occupied again after such a long vacancy. I know that I was getting a little nervous for a while there. Anyway, you have to give a lady like Evelyn a lot of credit. She ran a real grass roots campaign against Gerry D'Amico and came out on top in a significant primary win on September 16. Now she is a heartbeat away from the governor's chair and, as is her style, will probably win the respect of the people as a hard working lady on Beacon Hill. And, already, the talk surrounding Murphy concerns when she will become the state's first woman governor. As 1988 draws near, the talk will continue to increase as to who will succeed Dukakis. Should he leave for higher political office prior to the expiration of his term in 1990, Murphy will automatically take over, and be in a prime position to hold the office against other prospective candidates such as Jim Shannon.

Of all the races this year, the one the state Republicans had put the most hope in was where they seemed to be embarrassed the most. Joyce Hampers was defeated by a wide margin in her bid to unseat incumbent Treasurer Bob Crane. Though beaten by a significant margin on November 4, it is believed that Hampers did leave some serious scars on the incumbent who will probably have some opposition from his own party next election. One of the most interesting things last Tuesday was watching Joyce Hampers give a concession speech. It was kind of like seeing Mohamed Ali act humble. And finally, Bob Crane will now have held office more years than Ferdinand Marcos.

On the national front it was 'gonzo for Bonzo'. The president had campaigned vigorously for Republican senatorial candidates only to come up with a single return on his investment in the state of Missouri. This left a lot of grins on the faces of Democrats across the country, but wrongfully so. The conservative bend in America had not switched as all of the senate races were extremely tight and dominated by local issues. Secondly, Republicans made a significant gain in the number of governorships across the nation, as well as making a respectable showing in the House for an off-year election.

The real paradox of November 4 may be the similarities one can draw between Governor Dukakis and President Reagan. Both men seemed to come short on coattails this year. Reagan's popularity was not enough to hold on to the Senate as Dukakis' was not enough for defeat of question three and approval of the seat belt law. As for Dukakis' campaign for the presidency, which really began last summer, it will lead to some interesting results. The Duke may soon be able to relate to how Kariotis felt.

Wilmington schools examine educational goals

by Arlene Surprenant

It isn't often parents are afforded a major voice in their children's education for the next five years.

On Tuesday, November 25, elementary, junior high, and pre-school parents will have an opportunity to present their views on educational goals to the Wilmington School Committee at the Wildwood School at 7:30 p.m. They will have a chance -- indeed, they have already had ample opportunity these past months -- to explain where they stand on school reorganization, an extended kindergarten day, and equal computer opportunities beginning in grade four.

Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski has undertaken the enormous task of researching possible options which would best suit the Wilmington system. He has also set up a series of meetings and talked "with at least four to five hundred parents" on the issues and prepared his recommendation to the school committee, based on his findings and parental feedback. Committee members are expected to make a final determination before next year.

Because of crowded conditions in the three elementary schools and available space in the intermediate buildings, Mr. Dembowski has researched five options to best utilize building space.

OPTION ONE calls for the placement of all seventh and eighth graders at the high school, the closing of one intermediate school, and using one intermediate building for an elementary school. This option would involve townwide redistricting.

OPTION TWO would place grades seven and eight in one intermediate school and grades K through six in another. This option would require redistricting and extra busing.

OPTION THREE would place seventh and eighth graders in one intermediate school and fifth and sixth graders in the other. This would relieve all elementary schools but involve extra busing.

OPTION FOUR would keep the two intermediate schools with grades six through eight in each. This option would relieve all elementary schools and not involve redistricting and across town busing.

OPTION FIVE would involve opening the Boutwell School for use as an elementary school and mean redistricting the town.

Of the above five options, 80 percent of parents who attended meetings on the topic preferred the 6-7-8 concept outlined in option four. According to Mr. Dembowski, this option also best met his three criteria: to cause the least disruption to a family; be most fiscally responsible; and be most educationally sound.

In presenting this plan to the school committee, Mr. Dembowski will recommend that each intermediate school hire a full time assistant principal to help maintain a order and consistent discipline. He will also seek to implement the basic skills remedial program which is already in place but not utilized on a consistent basis.

In sometimes emotional discussion with parents, the assistant superintendent noted there were many questions raised including those dealing with the social aspects of moving sixth graders in with older students, sixth grade teacher assignments, and the apprehension of students over any change.

Whichever plan gets the final okay in December, said Mr. Dembowski, would most likely go into effect next September, 1987, and remain in effect for five years. After that period there would be an evaluation process, he added.

What turned out to be the "most volatile" issue during the meetings was a move to extend the kindergarten day by approximately one hour. It was felt that most kindergarten students exposed to some type of pre-school education could handle the extra time.

However, said Mr. Dembowski, his enthusiasm for the project diminished somewhat when he discovered that at least 50 percent of the parents he talked to were not in favor of the concept. Many parents told him not to "rush" their child and at least 15 percent of the parents he met with said their children didn't have the advantage of pre-school education. Other difficulties with the extended day include the need for 2.8 additional staff and four extra rooms.

Based on this feedback, Mr. Dembowski will recommend that the school committee go along with a pilot program next year. Under this program, parents would have the option of signing up for the extended day when they register their child in the spring. It would also require less additional staff and space.

The last goal to be addressed on November 25 will be the establishment of formal computer lab classes in each elementary school, beginning in grade four. Each lab would contain at least 15 functioning computers and be taught by a well-trained instructor.

If this plan goes into effect, said Mr. Dembowski, it would mean all elementary students would have been exposed to the same computer curriculum (covering keyboard and logo) by the time they enter seventh grade. It would also cost $100,000 for the whole package. This money would cover in-service teacher workshops, hiring additional instructors, and purchasing 18 new computers and equipment.

"I saw enormous support for computer education in this town," said the assistant superintendent, adding that there also seemed to be positive reaction to the computer lab concept.

Again, he stressed, the Wilmington School Committee will have to make the final decision on all options. And, he added, since parents will have to live with that decision, they should plan now to be present November 25 to make their views known.

Tewksbury votes

When Tewksbury voters express their opinions by their ballot votes those opinions are not necessarily those of the vote in open town meeting, which is supposed to be the most democratic form of government.

In a special town meeting last June (well attended, by Tewksbury standards) 1266 voters expressed their opinions on school busing, for other than public schools. The vote was 794 in favor and 472 against, a total of 1266 out of 1325 voters at that town meeting.

The figures were reversed, in Question 2 of the state election last week. Question 2 was relative to state aid for private schools. In Tewksbury 2,178 voted in favor and 4,894 against.

A second vote last week, that of last Saturday's special election, is also worthy of comment.

The Question Saturday was whether or not the voters were in favor of Tewksbury's town manager plan, already adopted by the town meeting and by the legislature.

Out of a total of 13,000 voters 1272 went to the polls and voted, 1075 in favor and 197 against.

Tewksbury's town manager plan is described by some as being weak. It is, those persons say, one of the poorer town manager plans in Massachusetts from a business of government standpoint.

If ever there is an outcry about the quality of the town manager plan in Tewksbury an large percentage of voters will be able to say:

"Don't blame me! I didn't vote for it!"

A little snow on the ground didn't stop six Wilmington youngsters from playing a game of football on the common on Tuesday afternoon. Those in the game were Chris Sullivan, Mike Forestiere, Charlie Prescott, Paul Trites, Ken McCue and Joe Spencer.

Being single is a career

When you see a man with a large flat wallet chained to his belt you can bet he's a truck driver. A man in a white apron with a black marking pencil in the pocket and a heavy floppy necktie is probably employed behind a meat counter. A man with a woman on each arm, magnifying glass hanging from one pocket and a blackjack bulging in the other could only be a recently divorced detective.

When I saw Greensleeves sporting a pair of scissors in a shiny black holster on his hip I figured he was either making bathrobes or packing fish.

"Actually," he explained, "I don't have time to work. My entire life is dedicated to cutting the ribbon at every singles' club that opens within 500 miles of here--" his scissors flashed in his hand as they snapped at an imaginary ribbon-- "and, of course, attending meetings. I attend a meeting at a singles' club every day of the year-- except my birthday and Christmas."

"There's something about a singles' club that sounds grim and depressing," I said.

Greensleeves looked like I'd slapped him across the face with a wet rag.

"Depressing?" he cried. "Where but inside the doors of a singles' club can you find such stimulating company? Have you any idea of the mental gymnastics required to stand before a crowd of your peers and explain why you're there?"

"Telling a crowd of people what's on your mind could be risky."

Greensleeves sniffed. "Don't be a child. Of course you don't say what you're really thinking -- nobody does unless they want to get carted off to an institution. That's what requires the mental contortions. You get up to speak your piece which usually goes like this:

"I'm Greensleeves from Skunk's Misery. I'm an antique dealer - and then you sneak a quick side glance at the new girl in the red dress who is crammed into it in the most wonderful way imaginable, and you say to yourself, 'I don't believe it. Ummm. Long brown hair. Nope, she's too good for me. Wouldn't I like ... don't kid yourself. She was talking with that grease ball detective earlier. They were laughing. Probably he's already got her lined up for the picnic next Saturday. I'll bet she's got most of her original teeth."

"Of course all that flashes through your mind in less than a second, and meanwhile your mouth is making sounds and everyone is paying polite attention."

I said, "Anyone but a spoiled child would pay attention."

"They only look like they are paying attention. A girl I know confessed that her thoughts at those meetings go something like this:

"Why are you looking at his shoes. Yeah, you can tell so much about a man by his shoes. Are they new and expensive or old and cheap. Are they big or small? Men's shoes are always sensible. Why does he wear those polyester pants. Somebody ought to tell him. Well, you're not going to. You've made a fool of yourself enough times already this month--when you went over to that detective's apartment after the dance his blackjack really was there on the kitchen table."

"Well, this creep could certainly learn something from a good book on how to dress. I'd like to help him pick out some decent clothes. Can't he see what the other men here are wearing. Even a monkey who sees another one washing his banana is likely to try it. Some men aren't as smart as monkeys, but I'll give him credit. For 50 he sure takes good care of himself. Probably runs four miles a day. he's not too smart and he sure looks hungry. I'll bet it wouldn't take much to bring him to heel."

"And all this time," Greensleeves continued as he wiped the sweat from his brow, "she's smiling at the fellow and giving every impression that she's hanging onto his every word."

"Some of you singles sure are dedicated when it comes to finding the perfect mate," I exclaimed.

"Mate? I'm so busy going to singles' meetings I don't even have time to think of dating."

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

The money we invest in schools, we invest in our children. In a society beleaguered with so many social and economic problems, money spent now represents an investment in our children's future.

Fact: English verbal SAT scores at Wilmington High increased 30 points this year.

Fact: Wilmington High School produced eight National Merit commendations in 1986.

Fact: Our graduates attend the finest universities, become leaders in business, and are assets to their community.

Teachers, parents, and students should be equally proud of these achievements.

However, also fact: According to the 1985-86 salary schedule, a teacher in Wilmington with a bachelor's degree begins at a salary of $14,582. Teachers who have furthered their education in the interest of our children rank 19 out of 20 surrounding communities on the masters degree and doctoral salary scales.

Fact: When the state offered to fund beginning salaries up to an $18,000 minimum, Wilmington did not accept the funds. Twenty-nine Wilmington teachers were at that time below what is considered by the state to be a minimum standard.

Fact: The teachers been negotiating a new contract since last January. On Wednesday, November 5, the teachers' negotiating team requested a date for the next bargaining session, hoping for a date in November. The date they received from the school committee was December 3.

Since our teachers are bringing our children up to parity with the surrounding communities, we feel that Wilmington should be bringing their teachers' salaries up to parity with the teachers of those communities.

How long can we expect our teachers to remain in a system that values them so lightly?

Other parents who feel as strongly as we do about this issue, please join us in contacting each member of the Wilmington School Committee.

Concerned parents
Patrick and Irene Hoffman and others

Dear Larz:

As a resident of Reed Street for 15 years, I have grave misgivings about article 5--an article on December's special town meeting warrant. If Wilmington voters pass this article, it will mean that at least 42 housing units will be crowded onto 38 acres at the end of my street.

I am against this article. My area is presently zoned R60. I would like to see this maintained. If Mr. Chisholm succeeds in rezoning to R20 and succeeds in his desire to bring in low cost housing, as stated in last week's Town Crier, this could drastically change the quality of our neighborhood.

Neighbors fear opening up Reed Street, which is presently a dead end cul-de-sac, and allowing cars and heavy trucks through. They fear connecting Reed Street to Third Avenue and creating a through-way from Billerica to Hopkins Street. As it is, with the ice rink soon to open, plus Billerica businesses on Hopkins Street and the Lake Street bridge soon to expand, this will generate more than enough traffic through a residential part of town. We all fear for our children's safety.

Neighbors in our area also have had more than enough problems with drainage and septic systems. We feel adding such a great number of homes would aggravate this problem.

We hope you agree with us that neighbors should have some say in their own neighborhoods. If you do, please take some time out of your holiday preparations and attend town meeting December 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

Come out, weigh the consequences and vote No on article 5. Thank you!

Dear Larz:

When rezoning articles have come up at Town Meeting, I usually listen carefully to what the abutters have to say for or against the proposed rezoning. If it is something that they don't want, I put myself in their place when making my decision, and the same holds true if it is something they do want.

At the upcoming Special Town Meeting on December 1, there are four rezoning articles on the warrant. I am asking the voters of Wilmington to come to this meeting and listen very carefully to the abutters--the people who are the ones most affected by any rezoning that would change the face of their neighborhood.

It doesn't matter whether this change will have a direct effect on you and it doesn't matter whether you have lived in town one year or 50 years. We all have an equal say. In the end, it has an effect on all of us. Let's become a community that helps each other--"Neighbor helping Neighbor."

Please come to the Special Town Meeting on December 1, 1986 at the Wilmington High School auditorium.

Thank you,
Sandy Volpe
Reed Street

Dear Larz:

The Wilmington Alumni and Friends Association has, with regret and mixed emotions, decided not to sponsor the Thanksgiving Eve annual pep rally and bonfire this year.

The recent vandalism to the press box as well as the vandalism done last year to the Alumni Field sign, the burning of the carriage house and the spray painting of the addition to the high school has caused a great deal of concern among the members of the Association who have given generously of their time and money to various high school activities.

Unfortunately, the responsible person or persons for these "sick" actions do take away from the majority of young people who are deserving of our support.

We feel, however, the time has come when the students and young people who want the continued support of adult groups such as ours stand up and be counted and stop protecting the culprits.

The young people in our town, along with their parents, are in the best position to help the authorities put an end to the acts of a few who make all suffer.

These acts of destructive vandalism must stop!

Sincerely,
James G. Cushing, president
Wilmington Alumni and Friends Association

Proposed road draws opposition

A proposed street, off Lowell Street, Wilmington for the purpose of getting four houselots drew a lot of attention from neighbors at a Board of Appeals hearing on November 10. The hearing was in the town hall. About a dozen residents from the Parker Street area of Wilmington were present in opposition.

Their strong point was the water conditions of the area. Water, they said, covers the area part of the year.

Chairman Bruce MacDonald explained the processes of public hearings several times, along with the fact that the Board of Appeals does not have any concern with water levels. It rules solely on questions of law. And, he said more than once, the opponents can challenge the decision of the board, when it is filed with the Town Clerk, providing they do so within 20 days. The challenge must be made in the courts.

John Connell, one of those in opposition told MacDonald that he intended to file a complaint with the Wilmington Conservation Commission Wednesday morning. That commission is the one that concerns itself with wetlands in any town. Connell said the water was 18 inches deep at times.

Charles F. Williams, Jr., owner of the Williams building on Lowell Street informed the board that the proposed street "comes within one foot of my building." MacDonald informed him that he has a "non-conforming" building, and further added that there was no problem--"it happens all over town."

Williams' son Robert claimed the street would "put the firm out of business." The firm has used the area for various purposes since 1952, he said.

MacDonald informed the audience, after the hearing, that the proposal meets "all criteria of official map cases. They also have to get permission from other boards."

Jay Tighe, Wilmington developer proposes to construct four homes on the street, which is to go to a point 800 feet from Lowell Street. The street is shown on a plan known as the Mengis Plan, originally drawn in 1873. The original name of the street was Young Street.

Part of the discussion was about the fact that the town owns some of the houselots, further than 800 feet from the street. Mr. MacDonald told the audience that he was a member of the Affordable Housing Commission, which was looking all over town for lots like those. "However, it will not be available for a year."

William (Bill) Hooper, planning board representative, informed the Board of Appeals that the planning board wants a turn-around at the end of the street, and street lights to be installed.

George Kambour

George C. Kambour of Livingston, New Jersey, formerly of Wilmington, died Monday, Nov. 10, 1986, at Berkeley Heights Convalescent Center in Berkeley, N.H.

Born in Colbrook, N.H., 82 years ago, Mr. Kambour taught math in Wilmington High School from 1930 to 1951 having served as principal of the school from 1948 to 1951. He attended Amherst College; the University of Pennsylvania, from which he graduated in 1930 and worked as a journalist for the Farm Journal in Philadelphia. He later received his Master of Arts Degree from Boston University.

While living and teaching in Wilmington he was a deacon for Wilmington's Congregational Church, participated in the Board of Boy Scouts and during World War II, served as an air raid warden for the community.

His devotion to many Wilmington friends and former students, brought him back to Wilmington to attend class reunions on every occasion possible, and many times was voted "favorite teacher." His most recent visit here was for the classes of 40-41 WHS reunion in May of this year.

Mr. Kambour left Wilmington to teach in Warren, Mass., where he served as principal from 1951 to 1957. Later he taught at Livingston High School in Livingston, N.J. for 10 years prior to retirement in 1966.

Press box toppled

A carefully executed act of vandalism occurred at Wilmington High School last Friday where someone sawed the supporting posts from under the press box on the football field. Throughout Saturday's football game against Lowell High School, the structure rested on the center bleachers and was roped off from onlookers.

According to School Superintendent Robert Horan, no attempt had been made to enter the box as the lock was untouched. And because of the nature of the cut, he added, some people have suggested it might have been the work of adults.

The toppled box was discovered by work crews Saturday morning. Horan expects the box will be removed as soon as possible prior to the Thanksgiving football game. Luckily, he added, the field area and the box were slated for renovation after the sports season is over.

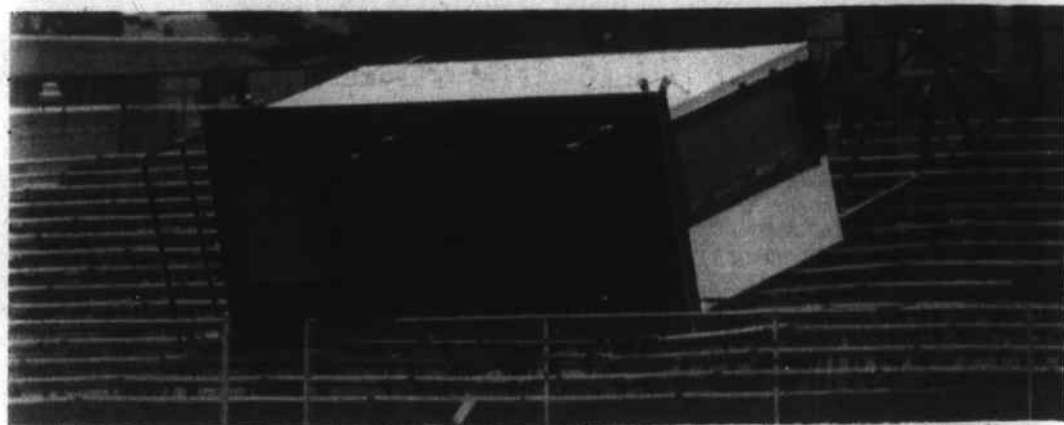

School officials and police have no indication why the vandalism occurred nor any suspects at this time.

WHAT ABOUT TAX SHELTERS?

We've all heard stories about rich people who put everything in tax shelters and never paid any tax at all. That's probably why there was pressure for tax reform in the first place. What will the new tax law do to tax shelters?

Hardest hit will be those shelters structured to generate huge losses to deduct against other income. Under the new law, these losses will be deductible only against income from like investments. For existing shelters, there'll be a phase-in period when losses are partially deductible against other earnings, and many current shelters will have run out before deductibility is totally restricted. Any option that generates taxable income to absorb excess losses.

Most investment advisors recommend against selling shelters now in light of the new tax law. The price you'd get would already be discounted against the expected changes.

Discuss your tax situation with the experts at:

Wilmington Board of Appeals cases

Edward Sheehan of Burnap Street appeared before the Wilmington Board of Appeals. He wished to erect a home for a daughter on a lot of 5000 square feet, adjacent to his home at 2 Burnap St. Mr. Sheehan was accompanied by more than a few neighbors, all in favor of the idea.

Sheehan owns a lot next door, with an area of over 12,000 square feet. Chairman Bruce MacDonald suggested it might be possible to slice a portion of the land off, and add it to the first lot. This Sheehan found to be good.

The appeals board will visit the area, to inspect the property.

Another case involving housing, heard by the board, was for property of Dorothy Capozzi, at 190 Chestnut Street. Attorney Joseph Courtney told the board that it had granted permission to divide the parcel into three lots, but that the Capozzi family had failed to act. The board granted a new right to divide the property in conformity with the original proposal. It must be acted upon within a year.

David Zampese was not as fortunate. He bought the property across Main Street from Grove Avenue in 1973 and was seeking to make the home a two family home. He had a special permit granted in December 1981, but had not used it.

Bill Hooper of the planning board said that the home must have at least 1600 square feet, and one of the two families must be the owners. It developed that there was adequate room on the main floor, but the second floor was not large enough. It was shy by 104 square feet. The case was withdrawn without prejudice--meaning that it can again be taken before the board.

Fred Acebido of 107 Grove Avenue was granted the right to retain an existing carport on his property, but if he ever sells the property the carport must first be torn down. The carport was constructed in the required side yard of his property.

Dana R. McKenzie of 1 Border Avenue was granted permission to keep a swimming pool on his property, even though it is in the existing rear and side yards.

A neighbor, Mrs. Grassi, wanted to know what was to happen about the water when he drained his pool.

The board ruled that he may keep the pool, but that he may not allow water to be shed on land that he does not own.

Slippery spot

Astle Street in Tewksbury is a good place not to be in a snowstorm. A winding road which comes to a stop sign at the bottom of a hill, it becomes treacherous when slippery.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending November 11, Wilmington police officers responded to 39 alarms, two fires, 15 accidents, two disturbances, made seven arrests and eight protective custody detentions.

Three larcenies were reported, along with seven incidents of suspicious activity, two assault and batteries and two breaks. One vehicle was reported stolen, one traffic complaint and one threat complaint were taken and 12 incidents of vandalism are under investigation.

Unarmed robbery

Late Thursday afternoon, a Lowell woman had her pocketbook stolen by an unknown male. Mrs. Gloria Salter had just cashed a lottery ticket for over $2,000 when she was accosted. The incident took place at Wilmington Plaza and the thief was described as being a white male of medium height with dark hair, a beard and wearing a dark jacket.

Anyone who may have noticed anything suspicious at or near the Plaza Thursday afternoon is urged to contact Wilmington detectives.

Friday evening four local men were arrested on Lowell Street near West by Officer Neville. David Marranzini, 18 of Wicks Circle was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and underage possession of alcohol. Russell Forest, 20 of Moore Street and David Deming, 20 of Federal Street, both of Wilmington were charged with underage possession of alcohol. A fourth individual was also arrested, William Eno 21, of Nichols Street was originally arrested and charged the same as Forest and Deming, only he gave a false name to the booking officers. He was bailed and later picked up again and placed under protective custody when officers learned his proper name, besides which he was age 21.

Officer Jim Peterson arrested a Boston man Saturday afternoon on drunk driving charges. Hector Escobedo, 54 of Lawn Street was charged, then bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Sunday evening Officer Bob Richter arrested a Tewksbury man after a computer check revealed a warrant for failing to appear in Winthrop court on an operating under the influence charge. James Decareau of South Street was bailed to appear in Winthrop court.

Vandals struck again at the high school last weekend. Someone cut the supports on the press box, which had just been built within two years, above the bleachers at the football field.

Several thousand dollars worth of damage was done as well as a black eye on the town of Wilmington. Anyone who might have heard any kind of information about this incident is encouraged to contact the police department, anonymously if preferred.

Half a dozen Hathaway Acres residents were on hand at the board of appeals meeting regarding a proposal of A.P. Rounds to remove gravel from the proposed extension of the area. They were present not to object, but to see what the proposals would be.

Karen Walden of Glendale Circle, a student at Melrose/Wakefield Hospital School of Nursing was among seven Melrose/Wakefield students who would be at Children's until February 4.

Chamber of Commerce had spent $1000 for Christmas lighting in the square, at Silver Lake and at North Wilmington Center.

20th anniversary for Rev. Millin

The Rev. Paul Millin saw no reason to think that anything extraordinary was about to happen last Sunday as he stood in the pulpit in the Congregational Church in Tewksbury.

True, there was a slightly larger congregation present than was usual, 195 persons to be exact. That could be a source of a little self satisfaction, if he had so wished.

He did not see his father, Raymond Millin, from Rhode Island and other relatives. They were seated halfway back, and to the right, behind the Mack Takach group. Mack, a it can be said, occupies quite a bit of space when seated in church.

Nor did he notice that Mrs.

Millin's father, Joseph Clough of Providence, Rhode Island was present. It was Raymond who had read the Scripture lesson the day that Paul was ordained.

The Rev. Mr. Millin did notice that Willie Simmons, Sunday School teacher was in the congregation. Ordinarily Mr. Simmons would have been downstairs, with the Sunday School.

Deacon John Ober was, well, a little bit busier than usual.

Then, as the service was drawing to a close, the door to the pastor's study opened and Better Ober came out. She was followed by three old friends, clergymen, some had a part in the ordination service of 20 years ago, and with his ministry over the years.

The Rev. Walter Telfer and Mrs. Margaret Telfer led the group. Walter Telfer had been the area minister in Framingham, 20 years before, and had taken part in the ordination of the Rev. Paul Millin.

Following them was the Rev. H.B. Lomis and Mrs. Lomis. He had been an associate pastor to the Rev. Mr. Millin, for five or six years.

The last couple was the Rev. Gordon Kennison, the pastor of the Tewksbury church from 1934 to 1939, and his wife Arlene.

It ended after a few minutes, when a new pulpit robe was presented to the Rev. Paul Millin. The robe was all white.

Ordinarily Congregational ministers wear a black pulpit robe, but this was different. John Ober helped Paul Millin with the robe. Then he presented a set of stoles, to be worn during church services. He helped too, with the stoles, and then stepped back to regard the new pulpit attire of the Congregational Church minister.

To John Ober all was well. He spoke for a few minutes, and then the services resumed.

There was, of course, a coffee hour after the service had been completed. There was a cake to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the ordination of Paul Millin, complete with candles. There was also a cake, complete with candles to celebrate the 20th birthday of the firstborn, to the Millin family. That had occurred the day after Paul Millin was ordained.

The two cakes were side by side, but the blowing out of candles were separate operations. After all, there were two events in those two days.

Satisfied

Deacon John Ober surveys the Rev. Paul Millin, after a gift of a white robe and stoles, Sunday morning in the Tewksbury Congregational Church.

New pavement for 'Hardscrabble'

Hardscrabble is an honorable word in parts of New England. It denotes a type of soil that is composed of hard clay and granolithic rocks. The rocks rise up, over the years, from that clay soil, being driven up by the winter frosts.

Hardscrabble for the past 250 years was the name of what is now High Street, in North Wilmington. The soil was not easy to cultivate. Rocks kept appearing where the farmers were cultivating their hops.

In recent years there has been only a little back yard gardening.

But in recent years a rock has been appearing in the center of the street, in High Street. Each year would find it a little higher than the year before. The boys in the highway department would pave over it, and maybe hope it would go away. That rock, however, kept acting true to form, as all rocks are supposed to do, in a hardscrabble area.

Residents in the area learned to "straddle" the rock, as they drove down High Street. Keeping to the right, as the law says they should do, was the honorable thing to do, but keeping to the center was much more pleasant.

Strangers would drive on High Street with their customary speed and verve, and suffer the indignity of an unexpected bounce.

Now the Wilmington Highway Department has changed all this. In October they dug out the rock, and filled the resulting hole. In early November they paved the street.

Automobile drivers can now use High Street in an assured manner. Things are a little better in Hardscrabble.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

The following is the official statement from the fifteen plaintiffs in the Tewksbury Private School Busing case.

On Thursday Nov. 6, Judge Andrew Gill Meyer handed down a decision in the case of Cronin and Others vs. the Town of Tewksbury. Judge Meyer ruled in favor of the plaintiffs. The judge ruled that the town moderator erred in his conducting of the Special Town Meeting in June which reversed the action of the Annual Town Meeting in May; also the magistrate ruled that the Tewksbury School Committee had devised an illegal plan for providing reimbursement to the families of private school students.

We, the plaintiffs feel that justice has been served. We are not gloating, nor are we claiming bragging rights. Even though the Town of Tewksbury was the defendant; the Town of Tewksbury, in our opinion, was the winner.

A township sets a tax rate and collects property taxes in order to provide domestic tranquillity for the citizens of the town as a whole. The Town of Tewksbury attempts to do that by requesting adequate funds for the Public Works Department, the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Public School Department, Services to the Elderly, and Services to the youth of our town through the many athletic associations. When special interest groups gather at Town Meeting to request their own funds, then the welfare of the whole community must suffer to some extent.

This is precisely what occurred in Tewksbury. To see a Fire Station closed for one-third of the year in the most densely populated part of town; to see school yards in serious need of major repairs; to see school buildings in need of repair; to see an under-manned police department; to find out from the Public Works Department that a street sweeper cannot do the same street in consecutive years; all these items lead to one conclusion: The Town of Tewksbury is in a financial bind. There is no room for "extras." That is exactly what Private School Busing, to the extent required in Tewksbury, would be, an extra. If we were part of an affluent town with extra revenue then perhaps this transportation could be provided; but we must face reality. The Town of Tewksbury cannot afford the responsibility of providing transportation to private schools that are out of town.

This feeling had to be predominant in the minds of the large segment of the population that turned out in June to reverse the actions of the Annual Town Meeting, only to be frustrated by the moderator's ruling. It was certainly our deciding factor in our suit against the town. We felt that we had the best interests of the town at heart. We feel further strengthened in our convictions by the results of the election of Nov. 4. Referendum question No. 2 (aid to private schools) was defeated in Tewksbury by more than a 2-1 margin with a 58 percent turnout of registered voters.

In Conclusion let us emphasize that we bear no malice toward private school students, nor their parents (quite the opposite - we can understand the conviction of their beliefs); yet we must note that if you so desire to put your trust in services other than what the town provides--you must be willing to bear the cost of such services.

Joseph P. O'Brien

Eastern Mass. Tournament

WHS girls topple Lynnfield, Tyngsboro

One celebration...

In the bottom photo, the Wilmington High School field hockey squad swarms in front of the Lynnfield net enroute to their first score in the Wildcats' 2-0 Eastern Massachusetts Tournament victory last week. The top photo is how the girls reacted after taking a 1-0 lead late in the contest.

...leads to another

There was more celebration (bottom photo) when the Wildcats scored an insurance goal to make the score 2-0 over Lynnfield. The Wilmington defense (top photo) was put to the test by a speedy Lynnfield attack. Wilmington went on to notch tournament victories over Lynnfield and MVC rival Tyngsboro.

WHS cracks semis

Wilmington High School's field hockey girls won their 15th and 16th games of the year last week in posting Eastern Mass. Tournament victories over Lynnfield and arch-MVC rival Tyngsboro.

The victories sent the Wildcats into the semifinals against Watertown at Bishop Fenwick. Karen Anderson and Lori Cormier scored the goals in the tough 2-0 win over Lynnfield, with Lisa Rogers picking up an assist. Both goals came late in the second half and within three minutes of each other.

Goalie Tina Favero played well for Wilmington as did teammates Susan Killelea and Jen Connors.

Friday's Tyngsboro win knocked the Small School champions out of the tournament. Earlier in the season Wilmington had split a pair of games with the Tigers, winning 3-2 and dropping a 2-0 decision.

Austin Prep wrapup

Spartans edge Cougars, 2-1

Soccer

The Cougars of Austin Prep traveled to Framingham on Tuesday, November 4 for the Massachusetts Division II North Soccer Tournament first round game and fell to the Spartans of Framingham North, the number seven seed in the tournament, and champions of the Bay State League by the narrowest of scores, 2-1.

Austin Prep, the co-champions of the Catholic Central League, scored the only goal of the first half at 9:28 when senior Antone Lauria headed in a chip shot from Keith Gautreau for the Cougar lead.

The teams remained in this position until the Spartans were able to convert consecutive shots at 21 and 22 minutes of the second half.

The unsung hero of the game was Austin goaltender Jim Hetu who faced 24 shots on the net and was credited with 22 saves in a heroic effort.

The final team record of 14-4-1 is the best ever for the Austin Prep soccer program, now in its third year under the direction of coach John Doherty of North Reading.

The season just completed saw new school records established for most wins (14), most shutouts in a season (six), fewest goals allowed in a 14 or more game schedule (24) and most goals scored in a season (71).

Individually, the team defense was paced by goaltender Jim Hetu who played 25 halves, allowing only 16 goals for a .64 average.

Fellow netminder Jeff Brine allowed eight goals in 13 halves, for a .61 average.

Antone Lauria set school career scoring marks in goals (38), assists (16) and total points (54) as he caps a three year career, breaking marks set by George Simas ('82, Tewksbury; graduate of Bentley College).

Fellow co-captain Keith Gautreau ended his career in fourth place in the lifetime scoring record book with 14 goals, 14 assists and 28 points.

Other seniors who contributed mightily to the success of the team this past year were Tim Desmond with eight goals and six assists; Robert Regan with six goals and one assist; Rick Foley with two goals and four assists and a quarter of talented fullbacks, Mike O'Connor, Mark Gualtaieri, Steve Capano and Gary Brian.

Football

Austin Prep's varsity football team suffered another tough loss this past weekend, falling to undefeated and number one ranked Archbishop Williams of Braintree, 16-0 in Braintree.

After the game, the Bishops remain unbeaten with a record of 7-0-0, while Austin Prep falls to a record of 4-2-1.

On their first drive, the Cougars appeared to score on a brilliant 55 yard run by quarterback Peter Jandrisevits, but the referee called the play back on a clipping call.

The Bishops scored late in the first period when Bill Connolly ran the ball in from eight yards out, and then added the two point conversion rush.

On the day, Connolly was the leading ground gainer with 20 carries for 107 yards.

Austin's attack was paced by Damon Renold with 44 yards on nine carries.

Austin failed to capitalize on three Bishop mistakes (two interceptions and one fumble lost). Doug Conroy and Brian Kelly each picked off a pass and returned it for significant yardage, while linebacker Mike Callahan fell on a loose ball at the Bishops' own 25 yard line. This led to a missed field goal, as Nick Chingris just missed from 39 yards out.

The Bishops second score came late in the fourth quarter, as Chris Landolfi ran the ball over from the one, and he then ran for the two point conversion.

On the day, the Bishop amassed 15 first downs to the Cougars five, while in total offense, the Bishops racked up 300 total yards, while the Cougars were held to 106.

Cross country

Although they were unable to defend their title won last year at the annual league meet of the Catholic Central League, the Cougars finished a strong second behind Archbishop Williams (47 points to 59 points) while placing six runners in the top 20 in the league. Each of the top 20 were awarded trophies by the league.

The meet was a 3.1 mile race on the campus of Curry College in Milton, on Sunday, November 2.

Paul Shea finished second in the league race, and was named the second league all-star performer.

Co-captain Sean McDermott (Tewksbury) led the rest of the pack. Eric Schnell came in 14th, while Shamus O'Connor took 15th.

Rounding out the trophy winners were Henry Quarles, in 19th place, and co-captain Scott Whalen in 20th spot.

Wet
Wildcats

There were a few wet Wildcats in the huddle listening to quarterback Dan Woods' instructions against Lowell. Wilmington looks to score a victory Saturday at Dracut.

Marsh, French
get down to business

Redmen John Marsh (53) and Dave French (60) were right in the middle of the muck and mire at Billerica Saturday. The Redmen slogged their way to a 6-0 victory.

Youth Soccer

The Wilmington girls under 10 traveling team continued to play excellent soccer last Saturday defeating Burlington, 3-1.

Nancy Pote scored two goals and Leanne Harris tallied the other to lead a strong effort by the entire team.

This victory raised the team's record to four wins, three losses, and two ties against strong Division I opposition.

As the record indicates, the girls have excelled against teams from the strongest soccer programs in Middlesex County - Billerica, Burlington, Chelmsford, Wakefield and Woburn - and the parents and coaches are very proud of their accomplishments.

The team has shown a strong defense all season long. The defense has been backboned by strong goalkeeping from Mary Armata and Erin Falzone. Both goalkeepers are very mobile and have always been alert, which has led to numerous key saves.

Denise Langone at center fullback is always in the right position and has the ability to send the ball out of danger with either foot.

Amy Hermann, the right fullback, is always hustling and challenging opponents for the ball.

Kelly Silva has played all the fullback positions, displaying blazing speed and a knack for being in the right position.

Jamie Austin has rotated between fullback and halfback and has a strong leg, displaying fine form on throw-ins.

The halfbacks have been a big factor in keeping the ball in the opponents end all season. They are led by Karen DeFrancesco at center half. Karen tirelessly covers a large portion of the field, is always aggressive and kicks well with both feet.

Nicole Dissault, Cindy Oatis and Branda Souza have all done an excellent job at the outside halfback position.

Nicole has a very strong leg and good speed, Cindy has shown good passing skills and Brenda has always hustled and is adept at throw-ins.

Lori Laquidara has played both halfback and forward and brought her strong foot skills to both positions.

The forward line, led by the high scoring duo of Nancy Pote and Leanne Harris, has been productive and opportunistic all season.

Nancy, at the rover position, is all over the field, constantly displaying her aggressiveness and soccer skills while still being able to get in position to score many key goals.

Leanne has excellent speed and dribbling skills which she uses to break away from the defense to score.

At left wing, Amanda Zaya is the fastest player on the team and she scored a big goal in one of the tie games.

Joannie DeMarco is always in position and has shown uncanny dribbling ability to bring the ball deep into the opponents' end.

Jackie Hayden at right wing is fast and aggressive and scored the only goal in a tough loss to Wakefield.

Diana Delaney keeps her position and has improved her soccer skills over the season.

The girls close out the fall season with a tough game at Wakefield on Saturday. They will be back together in the spring season and expect to continue to improve their soccer skills and most importantly, have fun.

Davidson cracks Wentworth lineup

The Wentworth Institute of Technology women's basketball team has started its practice under the new coach, Joe Amoroso, in preparation for opening the season in the Coca-Cola Classic on November 22-23 at Plymouth State College.

Coach Amoroso and his assistant coach, Mark Osowski, are pleased by the players' early showing as they enter their first year in the NCAA Division III competition.

This year's squad is looking to the leadership and experience of returning players Jennifer Robbins, Ringwood, N.J., Kimberly Boosahda, West Boylston, at the guard positions and Zarouhi Minasian, Lexington, and Athena Roumeliotes, Haverhill, at the forward positions.

Three bright looking freshmen prospects include Chris McHug, Mahopca, N.H., at forward, Sarah Davidson of Wilmington and Maria Rulz, Cambridge at the guard spots.

Senior Diane Ferry, Dorchester, looks to help coming off the bench. Robbins, a junior, has set most of the Wentworth records and is looking forward to having another outstanding season.

Boosahda, a quick fiery guard, will bolster the backcourt with defense and scoring punch.

Minasian and Roumeliotes will supply the rebounding and inside scoring that will be much-needed at this new level of competition.

Local pair paces Bentley

Making its fifth postseason tournament appearance in the last eight years, the Bentley College field hockey team recently faced Wooster College (Ohio) in the first round of the NCAA Division III Northeast Regionals.

The national semifinals and championship game will be played November 14-15 at a site to be determined.

Bentley (14-1), is tied for fourth in the latest NCAA Division III rankings, and Wooster (13-5) had one common opponent this year, Salem State.

The Falcons closed out the regular season last Wednesday with

Wilmington Figure Skating Club

Skate With Us program

The Wilmington Figure Skating Club is pleased to announce the beginning of its "Skate With Us" program.

This program will be open to boys and girls age five and up who have the desire to learn to skate. The club's highly qualified professional staff will be assisted by volunteer instructors to teach the beginner through advanced skater.

The classes will be held in the brand new skating facility, located on Main Street (Route 38), Wilmington on Saturdays, beginning November 22, from noon to 1 p.m.

The program will run for 23 weeks. Additional volunteer instructors are greatly needed. If you enjoy working with children and have some skating experience, we need you.

Immediately following the basic skills program, the club will offer a "Patch and Free Style" session from 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. All interested skaters are welcome to skate on great ice in a warm atmosphere.

Pre-registration for the basic skills program will be held November 15 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the "Big W Skate and Exhibition Center."

For applications and information regarding the basic skills program or patch and free style, contact Susan Farkas, 658-2412; Susan Barker, 658-4681 or Lucy Costanza, 658-6130.

Anyone interested in buying or selling skates should plan to be at pre-registration November 15 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Tewksbury girls avenge defeat

Fall soccer

On Sunday, Oct. 26, the Tewksbury girls' youth soccer team avenged an earlier loss by turning the tables on a strong Saugus team.

The girls emerged victorious with a 1-0 shutout. Goalkeeper Charlene Cestroni was perfect in goal and was assisted by a very able defensive effort from her teammates.

The winning goal was registered by sharpshooter Caroline Kondoleon.

On Sunday, Nov. 9, the Tewksbury girls continued their winning ways as they blanked a formidable Andover team, 3-0.

This shutout was credited to goalkeeper Jane Carey. Caroline Kondoleon resumed her hot streak by scoring all three Tewksbury goals.

Girls' varsity

School Committee Chairman Thomas Cook has informed the TYSL that the committee will discuss girls' varsity soccer at its Nov. 19 meeting. TYSL urges all interested parties to attend this meeting as a sign of support for the proposed program.

Painting class November 17
The painting class will be held at the Buzzell Senior Center next Monday, Nov. 17. For the past four years the Wilmington senior citizens have volunteered four to five days packaging thousands of gifts to be delivered to the disadvantaged children in the greater Boston area for Christmas, by radio station WRKO. We received a call from Mr. Roger Allen of WRKO. He would appreciate our help again this year on Wednesday, Nov. 12, Thursday the 13th, Monday the 24 and Tuesday, November 25 at the Shriners Auditorium on Fordham Road. Call the Center if you have some hours on those days to help make Christmas a happy day for a lonely child. It will make Christmas more meaningful for you.

Surplus cheese and butter will be given out while it lasts to any senior who has not received it, at the Senior Center.

Many beautiful craft articles are being brought into the Center by seniors who have been working on them in their homes, for the Fall Fair. We have many closets to store your articles until the Fair, November 29. By the number of articles we are receiving we know this fair will be our best.

The women in the arts and crafts sessions have many craft projects that will have to be finished before the fair. Can you lend your hands to help them finish the articles?

Fuel applications
Fuel applications are being made out at the Senior Center. If you called for an appointment to have your appointment made and have not been given a time, it is because several applications had not been cleared through the Social Security Office. We have been informed we can make those applications out now. Call the Center and we will give you a time to come in. Many seniors could not qualify last year because they were slightly over income. This year the income level is slightly higher. Call for more information 658-2258, 657-7595. You may be able to receive help.

Thanks for signing in
We thank all the seniors for cooperating and signing in as they enter the Center. This procedure will help us keep a more accurate numbers on how many seniors are entering every day, for help, advice, socialization or for one or several of our many activity programs. We tried to mark every one who came in, but unfortunately when we are too busy we miss them. We started the sign up procedure Monday, Nov. 3 and on that day 76 entered, Tuesday, 157, Wednesday 110, Thursday 84 and Friday 101.
